

“SPRING IS COMING” CREATIVE JOURNAL

Make this spring memorable by detailing nature’s changes in a colorful way. This activity uses a paper flower as a journal to document changes in nature as spring approaches and unfolds.

Materials

- Colored construction paper, various colors
- Glue stick
- Markers and/or crayons

Instructions

1. Cut out the center circle of the flower and have your child draw an image of spring as s/he visualizes it. Make the circle and petals large enough to allow ample space for drawing and writing.
2. Every week go out with your child to find signs that spring is coming. Examples include: longer and warmer days, melting ice, birds chirping, insects buzzing, butterflies flying, blooming flowers and green leaves on trees.
3. Write and draw each new sign of spring on a new petal. Glue them around the center. At the end of the season, you will have a beautiful large flower that you can hang in your child’s bedroom.
