

What you need to buy a leftover license in-person:

Those who plan to purchase leftover licenses at license agents or CPW offices should be prepared before they arrive. This will help the process run as efficiently as possible.

Not all locations are offering licenses on a first come, first served basis.

Contact the location you plan to visit for leftover day to inquire about their specific leftover day process.

Be sure to bring the following documentation with you:

- Driver's license or verifiable state issued identification card,
- Proof of hunter education: hunter education card or a Colorado hunting license with verified hunter education,
- Your social security number (anyone 12 years of age and older are required to give their social security number, if not already on file),
- Your customer identification number (CID), if you have previously purchased a license in Colorado,
- Proof of residency, if you are planning to purchase a resident license,
- A prioritized list of hunt codes for licenses you are interested in.

If purchasing a license for someone else (gift licenses), the purchaser must bring the following for the hunter they are purchasing for:

- A clear copy of both sides of their driver's license/state issued identification card,
- A clear copy of both sides of their hunter education card or a previous Colorado hunting license with verified hunter education,
- Their social security number (anyone 12 years of age and older are required to give their social security number, if not already on file),
- Their customer identification number (CID), if they have previously purchased a license in Colorado,
- A prioritized list of hunt codes they are interested in.

Important Gift License Purchasing Restrictions:

You cannot buy a license for someone else OVER THE PHONE. The option to buy for someone else is only available in person at a CPW office or license agent.
