

Joan Brucha, MPH, Healthy Eating Active Living Unit Manager, Colorado Department of Public Health and Environment

Joan Brucha is the Healthy Eating Active Living (HEAL) Unit Manager at the Colorado Department of Public Health and Environment. She previously worked with the Physical Activity and Nutrition and Coordinated School Health programs. She has experience working statewide and nationally with childhood obesity initiatives. She led the Healthy Schools Program with the Alliance for a Healthier Generation, an initiative started by the Clinton Foundation and American Heart Association, and was Vice President of Professional Development Services at RMC Health. Joan holds a Master Degree in Public Health from the University of Northern Colorado. In her spare time, she enjoys listening to live music, attending Rockies and Nuggets games, and being physically active, especially running in Denver's City Park.