

Kailyn Haskovec, NPCA, CU Boulder/MENV program

Kailyn is passionate about outdoor recreation and ensuring its longevity through responsible behavior choices. As a student concentrating in Sustainability Planning and Management at the Masters of the Environment program at CU Boulder and partnering with the National Parks Conservation Association (NPCA) for a year-long capstone, she studies the social use of public space. She graduated with a Bachelor's degree from the University of Oregon in Sociology and minored in Environmental Studies and Planning, Public Policy and Management. Through the capstone with NPCA, Kailyn and her team of fellow graduate students study best practices for encouraging sustainable outdoor behavior to a younger generation.
