

Kasha Malling, NPCA, CU Boulder/MENV program

Kasha is a current graduate student in the Masters of the Environment program at the University of Colorado Boulder. After graduating from Colorado State University with a wildlife biology degree in 2013, Kasha has focused a majority of her work on ecological research in Colorado and California. She is currently pursuing her passion in environmental conservation and stewardship through a partnership with the National Parks Conservation Association. Working alongside the NPCA, Kasha and a team of graduate students aim to create a movement towards responsible behavior change throughout public lands in the Southwest.
