CPW invites anglers to participate in annual Elkhead Reservoir Fishing Classic

Anglers, mark your calendar. Colorado Parks and Wildlife invites you to the annual Elkhead Reservoir Fishing Classic starting on Saturday, June 22, at Elkhead Reservoir State Park. With nearly $10,000 in prizes, anglers of all ages are encouraged to participate.

Tournament angling will begin at 6:30 a.m. on June 22. Fish caught before the start of the tournament will not qualify. Tournament angling will conclude on Sunday, June 30.

Anglers must have their catch of northern pike and/or smallmouth bass for that day turned into the CPW fish scanning station by 3 p.m.

on June 30 to qualify for tournament awards and prizes.

One northern pike and one smallmouth bass will be tagged internally and released prior to the start of the tournament. The angler(s) who catches one or both of the tagged fish will receive $1,500 per tagged fish caught.

"We are looking forward to another great tournament," said Area Aquatic Biologist Tory Eyre. "We recently started stocking tiger muskie in the reservoir to provide additional angling opportunities. Tiger muskie are often confused with Northern Pike. We want to remind our anglers to pay close attention to the fish they are catching."

Participants are not required to register before the event. However, those who wish to compete for awards and prizes must register upon arrival at the park or when turning in their first fish at the CPW fish scanning station located at the Elkhead Reservoir State Park maintenance shop near the park entrance. There is no tournament entry fee, but a State Park pass is required to enter Elkhead State Park. Any individual aged 16 years and older will need a valid Colorado fishing license.

Tip of the Week - Drop Shot Fishing

Drop shot fishing is a well-established technique used around the world, particularly for deep-water fishing targeting suspended fish. Originating in Japan, it swiftly gained traction in the United States, proving highly effective for various species like bass, trout, crappie, bluegill, perch and walleye.

Also known as "under shot" or "down shot," drop shot fishing employs a straightforward rigging method and is considered a finesse technique due to its use of smaller weights and baits.

Finesse drop shot weights come in sizes ranging from 1/8 oz. to ½ oz., available in standard bullet/ball designs. These weights aren't directly tied to the line; instead, they're secured by being wedged into the wire gripping slot/eyelet, serving dual purposes.

Firstly, if the weight snags on debris, it can dislodge without breaking off the entire rig. Secondly, this design permits quick adjustments in the distance between the hook(s) and the weight without the need for retying.

The rig configuration resembles the traditional setup with the weight at the bottom and the hook(s) tied above it, but with hooks snugly connected to the line and no leader in between. The Palomar Knot is the preferred choice for tying hooks to the line, enabling the hooks to stand out at a 90° angle, presenting a more natural appearance for the bait.

Drop shot fishing hooks are available in various sizes, typically ranging from 001, 002, 004, 1/0 and 2/0, provided by numerous suppliers. These rigs can be jigged from a boat or "twitched" from shore, employing techniques similar to those used in Texas or Carolina rigs.

Note: Retrieving a drop shot rig may cause "line twist" due to the weight's direct attachment to the line. Using a swivel can mitigate this issue, but it sacrifices the ability to swiftly adjust the weight for different conditions.
