▼ Chaos Canyon Closure

REASON
Hazardous Conditions

COMMENT
Chaos Canyon Debris Slide Area Closure
Areas West of Lake Haiyaha Remain Closed

Chaos Canyon is a popular area for bouldering. On June 26, 2022, a large rockslide event occurred on the south slope of Hallett Peak, resulting in sliding rock falling into Upper Chaos Canyon. Since this day, the area remains very active and numerous other smaller slides have occurred. All areas in Chaos Canyon to the west of Lake Haiyaha remain closed to all users. Entering the closure area is prohibited. There is no known time on when this closure will be lifted as the area of the rockslide continues to be highly unstable.

The hiking trail to Lake Haiyaha, Lake Haiyaha itself, and hiking trails on the north side of Hallett Peak remain open. The bouldering area in lower Chaos Canyon, on the north and east shore of the Lake Haiyaha, remains open. ### ▼ Sprague Lake Loop

Abner Sprague homesteaded in this area more than a century ago and created a trout pond by damming a stream. Sprague also undoubtedly appreciated the breathtaking views of the Continental Divide, which are best seen from this trail at the far end of the lake.

A wheelchair-friendly loop, the surface is packed gravel and level around the entire lake. On the opposite side is an accessible campsite, noted in this route's Timeline below. There are accessible parking spots, picnic tables, and restrooms (flush in summer, vault in winter). This and the Bear Lake nature trail are also the only places strollers are allowed in the Bear Lake
