COLORADO PARKS & WILDLIFE

North Sterling State Park

ENJOY YOUR STATE PARKS

cpw.state.co.us

Majestic bluffs and expansive views of the golden prairie greeted early settlers traveling westward via the nearby Overland Trail. Those panoramic views now welcome modern visitors to North Sterling State Park.

North Sterling is a boater's and fisherman's paradise offering a nearly 3,000-acre lake with a fascinating array of flats and coves to explore. An additional 2,800 acres of land support a wide variety of recreational activities, including bird-watching, wildlife viewing, hiking, and more. The region is home to a diversity of wildlife and has a rich historical heritage.

Built in the early 1900s, the reservoir serves as an important irrigation facility along the lower South Platte River Valley. Colorado State Parks acquired the property in 1992 and manages recreation on the reservoir through a perpetual easement with North Sterling Irrigation District.

Camping

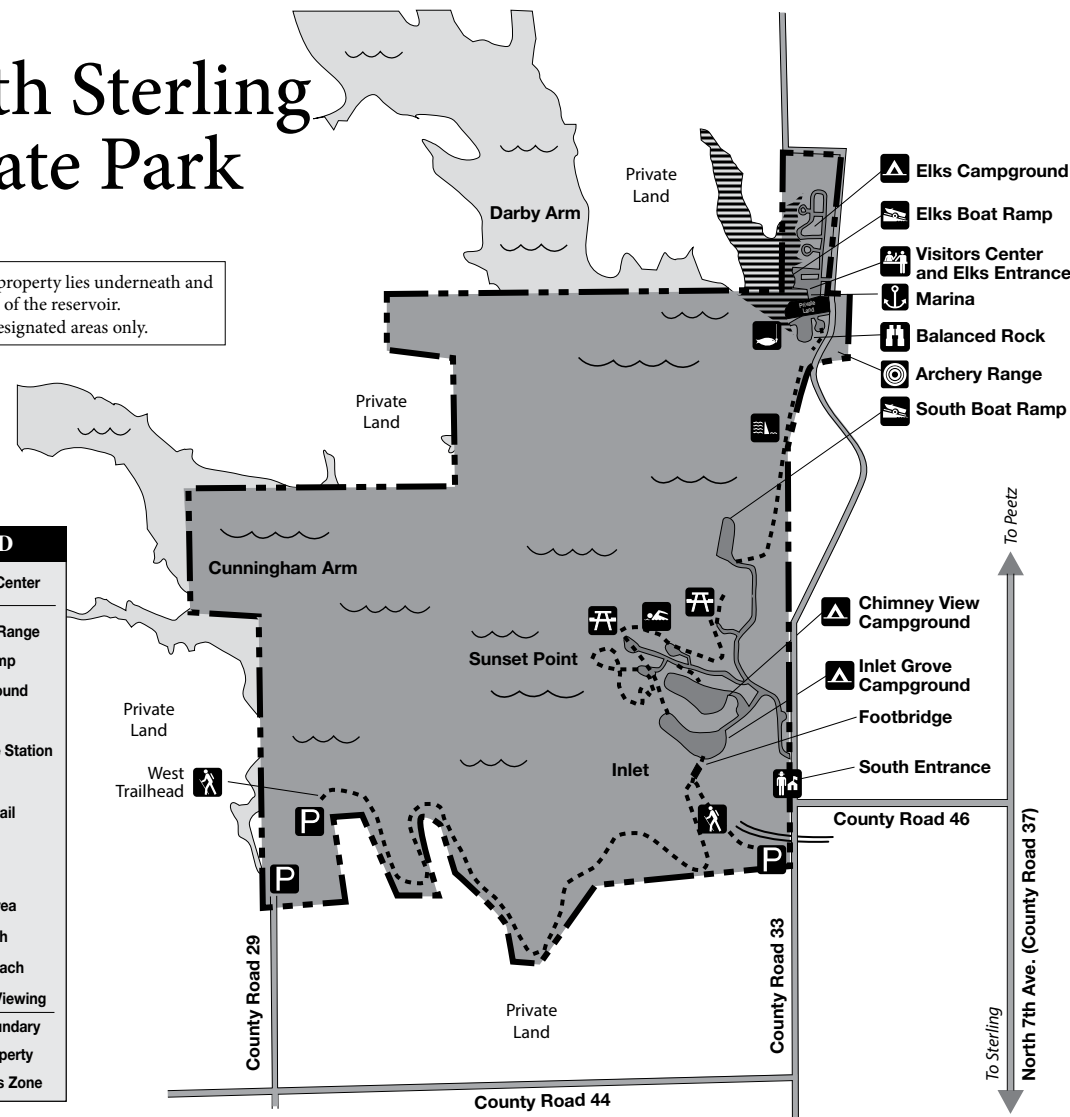

Three campgrounds with 141 campsites can accommodate tents, trailers, or motorhomes. Electrical hookups are available at all sites in Elks (30-amp) and Inlet Grove (50-amp) campgrounds, with potable water hydrants located nearby and wastewater dump stations available inside each entrance. Camper services buildings provide flush restrooms, coin-operated showers and laundry facilities. Campsites are limited to one camping unit and a maximum of six people.

Camping is allowed in designated sites by reservation only. Reservations may be made the day of arrival or up to six months in advance. Advanced reservations are recommended in busy season as sites fill up very quickly. For reservations, call 1-800-244-5613 or www.cpw.state.co.us
